THE SEARCH

MASKED MAN, ARMED WITH A SHOTGUN, ENTERED WILSON HOME, TAKING WOMAN

Greenfield, Mo., Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—Officers, aided by a steadily increasing corps of volunteers, searched vainly today for Mrs. Alma Wilson McKinley, 24, daughter of Dad county's wealthiest citizen, who was kidnaped from her home near here last night.

Mrs. Benton Wilson, the girl's mother, was alone with her daughter when a masked man, armed with a shotgun, entered the large Wilson farm home. He forced the young woman to drive away with him. Mrs. Wilson was left bound and telephone wires to the house were cut by the kidnaper.

"They haven't found a trace of Alma or of her car," Mrs. Wilson told the United Press. "We don't know which way to turn. Thus far there has been no word at all from my daughter."

Mrs. McKinley was an expectant mother. This fact was cited as probable basis for a belief by the kidnaper that he could obtain ransom easily from the girl's father.

"The man at first demanded money," Mrs. Wilson told officers who were summoned after she freed herself and ran along a country road to a neighbor's house for aid. "We told him there was none and he said, 'Which one can drive the car?' When my daughter told him she could drive, he tied me and made her drive away with him."

Wilson, who made a fortune in Oklahoma oil fields and retired to his 4,000-acre farm near here, was in Kansas City when the kidnapping occurred. He was accompanied by his two sons and Harold McKinley, the girl's husband.

Greenfield is about 100 miles southeast of Kansas City.

Henry Bartlett, communist secretary of state candidate, spent $425 and received $300 while Mike Holm, republican, spent $250 and received $300.

CHARGES ARE BATTED AROUND IN THE CAMPAIGN

ANSWERS, COUNTER CHARGES MADE BY GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATES

OLSON AND CHASE CLASH ON DISPOSITION OF STATE TIMBER

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—Charges, answers and counter charges were battled back and forth by gubernatorial candidates today.

Floyd B. Olson, farmer-labor candidate who spoke in Minneapolis last night, said that the present state auditor and his republican opponent, Ray P. Chase, had aided in dissipating the state timber reserve. Chase previously said Olson referred to conditions existing a few years before he was born. He cited a recent sale of 22,000,000 cubic feet of timber.

The farmer-labor candidate said he would seek to have control of the state's timber placed with a conservation commission which he hopes to see appointed instead of with the state auditor. Such a change, Olson said, could be done by statute and without a constitutional amendment, he had been informed by the interim committee of the legislature on reforestation and the attorney general's office.

Speaking at Tracy, Minn., Chase denied charges by Olson that he had any connections with a "clique," other than the republican party which "no one need be ashamed of."

Chase then said that Olson's charge showed that "he cannot refute my charge that the once-great farmer-labor party has been taken over by a coterie of self-seeking Minneapolis politicians."

In his radio talk, Olson said Minnesota was behind neighboring states in "conserving resources" while Chase said the republican party had obtained "forward looking agricultural and industrial legislation until Minnesota stands ahead of all its sister states in these respects."

MERIDEN, MINN., BANK IS ROBBED OF $1,500 CASH

THREE UNMASKED MEN WERE DRESSED AS FARM HANDS

MAKE THEIR ESCAPE FROM THE TOWN IN CAR BEARING IOWA LICENSE

Meriden, Minn., Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—Three unmasked men, dressed as farm hands, held up the First State Bank shortly before noon today and escaped with more than $1,500 in silver and currency.

The men entered the bank while the cashier, Fred Sette, and Assistant Cashier L. H. Schulte were alone. The men drew revolvers and ordered the employees to lie on the floor.

While one bandit stood guard over the two men, his companions scooped up the cash and the three fled from the building.

They made their escape from the town in a sedan bearing an Iowa license before the townspeople realized what was happening.

Sheriff Joseph Fisher of Mower county and citizens of Meriden and Owatonna formed posses immediately to track down the raiders.

They drove off toward the north and were thought to have reached state highway No. 7 running east and west. The trio were not reported after leaving Meriden.

The Meriden bank had never been held up, officials said. It was the second bank raid in the vicinity this year. The State Bank of Bixby was raided in May. Meriden is near Owatonna. It has a population of approximately three hundred.

POWELL DESCRIBES PREPARA- TION OF FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TO STEM REVOLT

The United Press has assigned staff correspondents with both factions in Brazil's civil war. C. A. This dispatch describes preparations of the federal government in the war zone to oppose rebels advancing on Sao Paulo from the south.

Itagare, Sao Paulo-Parana Border, Brazil, Oct. 14.—Brazilian government troops continued their advance southward against the rebels today while federal forces occupied most of the Sao Paulo-Parana border, from Salto Grande to Ribeira.

Troops commanded by Col. Paes Andrade were reported approaching the rebel stronghold, Jaguarihyva, in Parana. There was no evidence of the reported rebel concentrations on the border, and federal officials attributed the reports to rebel propaganda spread by radio.

Itagare, a small agricultural town, has assumed the appearance of a military outpost. Volunteers arrived from Sao Paulo and the entire region was filled with federal troops. Civil life virtually was at a standstill, as trains brought troops and supplies into the area.

The federal volunteers, regular troops and residents in the concentration zone went about the preparations for an attack on the rebels with an air of confidence and determination. There were no outward signs of frantic enthusiasm such as that reported from the south by rebel sources, but the federal forces obviously were loyal and confident.

Reports indicated that federal successes on the northern and southern fronts, the two points from which the rebels hoped to converge on Sao Paulo and the federal capital, had checked rebel advances. Federal forces were in possession of Jaguara, establishing control of the railway between Sao Paulo and Minas Geraes, where the rebels have established headquarters in central Brazil.

The federal continued their campaign against Bello Horizonte, capital of Minas Geraes, where the rebels have been firmly established since the outbreak of the revolt.

NEWTON DAMAGE SUIT TO JURY

Minneapolis, Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—John Newton, 11, son of the president's secretary, spent his last day in the drab district court chambers of Judge Frank E. Reed.

The damage suit filed in his behalf by his father, Walter D. Newton, against the Minneapolis Street Railway Co., asking $50,000 for the loss of John's leg in a street car accident in June, 1929, was due to go to the jury today.

Rebuttal arguments were made by Newton's attorneys and counsel for the street car company today.

During the trial of the case, jurors heard witnesses describe the accident in which John lost his leg. The Newton youth was riding a bicycle when he fell against or was struck by a street car.

The car passed over his leg, severing it from his body. Differences in testimony of witnesses telling the story of how the accident occurred was the major point at issue in the case.

TRUNK SEIZED, WHICH CARRIED MORE THAN 500 LETTERS FROM WOMEN

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—Extent of the correspondence which George W. E. Perry, bigamist and accused slayer of Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett, carried on with women throughout the United States was revealed here today with the seizure of more than 500 letters in his trunk.

The letters were from women in all stations of life and were accompanied by photographs, his wife declared. With some of those who answered the ads, Perry carried on extended correspondence.

Perry's eldest son, John, returned yesterday from a trip to southern states where he talked with some of his father's bigamous wives. John said he examined luggage left in a St. Louis hotel room which Perry fled after the murder of Mrs. Hackett was discovered. However, the son refused to reveal what his investigation disclosed.

AIRSHIP FALLS INTO TAILSPIN AT 400 FEET

KNOWN THROUGHOUT FROZEN WASTES AS THE "MARQUETTE" MISSIONARY

Nome, Alaska, Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—Two Jesuit missionaries and a pilot were dead today following a crash of their plane on the frozen tundra of northwestern Alaska yesterday.

The dead were:
Father Philip I. Delon, superior of Jesuit missions in Alaska.
Father William Walsh of the Kotzebue mission.

Ralph Wein, noted Alaskan aviator, All were killed instantly when the plane carrying them back here from a trip to isolated native communities, suddenly fell into a tail-spin at an altitude of 400 feet and crashed to earth.

The plane, a Bellanca six-passenger cabin type, with a Packard Diesel engine, known throughout the frozen wastes as the "Marquette Missionary," was demolished. Often in the past it had taken the fathers on their errands of mercy into out of the way places, almost impossible to reach by other methods of transportation at certain times of the year.

DAVID EMMETT, CHICAGO GAMBLER, MEETS HIS DEATH

WAS KILLED LAST NIGHT BY GUNMAN WHO JUMPED ON RUNNING BOARD OF CAR

TWO THEORIES: THAT HE HAD WELCHED, OR BECAUSE OF RACKET TROUBLES

Chicago, Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—David Emmett, 39, said by police to have been one of Chicago's most successful gamblers, was killed late last night by a gunman who jumped upon the running board of Emmett's automobile and fired one shot into his heart.

Two theories, that Emmett was killed because he had "welched" a bet or because of racketeering troubles, were given credence today by authorities investigating the slaying, which occurred in front of the gambler's home.

Stephen Platon, a garage owner, was with Emmett at the time of the shooting. He said Emmett had offered to take him home in his car and had paused in front of Emmett's home to talk for a few minutes.

"Look out, duck!" Platon quoted Emmett as shouting as a gunman, who had alighted from an automobile about 150 feet away, stepped onto the running board of Emmett's car.

Platon jumped from the machine just as the gunman fired and as the car, started quickly by its terrified driver, raced across the street. The machine jumped a curb and was wrecked when it crashed into a fence. The killer, meantime, had jumped from the running board, ran back to his own car, and escaped.

MORROW THINKS THAT HOOVER IS TO BE RE-NOMINATED

FORMER AMBASSADOR HIMSELF HAILED AS PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITY

MORROW OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN FOR ELECTION TO THE SENATE

Newark, N. J., Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—Dwight W. Morrow, hailed in the east as a presidential possibility in 1932, believes President Hoover will be re-nominated and re-elected.

Although the former ambassador is known to be a close friend of Mr. Hoover, prominent New Jersey leaders consider him a potential candidate for the White House, possibly in the next campaign. Morrow, in a speech opening his campaign for election to the senate, said such statements were unauthorized.

"I look forward with pleasure and with confidence to the opportunity of voting two years from now for the re-nomination and re-election of Herbert Hoover."

Morrow met the "prosperity" issue raised by his democratic opponent, State Senator Alexander Simpson. Speaking of the economic depression, he said he recognized the tendencies of political parties to exaggerate the accomplishments of their own administrations and depreciate the achievements of their opponents.

"All parties in the past, including the republican party, have been wont to credit themselves with whatever good times happened during their term of power, without looking for the deeper reasons that underlie the ebb and flow of prosperity," he said.

"The federal government cannot of itself bring back prosperity. It can, however, maintain those conditions which make industrial recovery possible."

Morrow praised Hoover's action in coping with the depression.

The former ambassador to Mexico reiterated his liquor stand although the prohibition issue virtually is removed from the campaign, as Simpson is a wet. Morrow favors repeal of the 18th amendment and granting of power to the states.

AIRSHIP FALLS INTO TAILSPIN AT 400 FEET

KNOWN THROUGHOUT FROZEN WASTES AS THE "MARQUETTE" MISSIONARY

Nome, Alaska, Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—Two Jesuit missionaries and a pilot were dead today following a crash of their plane on the frozen tundra of northwestern Alaska yesterday.

The dead were:

Father Philip I. Delon, superior of Jesuit missions in Alaska.

Father William Walsh of the Kotzebue mission.

Ralph Wein, noted Alaskan aviator. All were killed instantly when the plane carrying them back here from a trip to isolated native communities, suddenly fell into a tail-spin at an altitude of 400 feet and crashed to earth.

The plane, a Bellanca six-passenger cabin type, with a Packard Diesel engine, known throughout the frozen wastes as the "Marquette" missionary, was demolished. Often in the past it had taken the fathers on their errands of mercy into out of the way places, almost impossible to reach by other methods of transportation at certain times of the year.

2 BANDITS POSE AS GAS METER READERS IN HOLDUP

St. Paul, Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—Two bandits who posed as gas meter readers held up Mrs. Anthony Goffredo in her home today and robbed her of a $1,000 ring.

The pair lured her into the basement of the house on a pretext that a pipe was broken. When she descended they pressed revolvers to her head and told her not to scream.

"We killed people for less than a dollar," one said.

Leaving his companion to guard Mrs. Goffredo, one of the men ransacked the house. When she heard her baby crying, Mrs. Goffredo fainted and did not come to until after the bandits had left.

She found her baby unharmed but a $1,000 diamond ring missing.

Dinner for Four

By MARY CAREY

"UMPH!" said Timmy as the cold spray splashed his fat little chest, and "Glug!" said Timmy as he was lifted pink and dripping from his rubber tub.

"Heavens!" cried Timmy's mother, "there's the phone."

"That you, dear?" Peter, on the wire, was stern and businesslike. "I'm bringing the Clarkes home to dinner tonight. Sorry I didn't know a little sooner."

Both gasped. Clarke was the chief engineer, the "boss"; she had never met him, nor his wife. "I'll do my best," she began, "but..."

"Good. Usual train. By, dear."

No details, no explanations; that was Peter for you. "How like a man," thought Beth. "Delicious dinner, charming hostess. Lovely little home—boss deeply impressed: 'Never appreciated you, $10.00 a year.' Beth grinned to herself. 'I'll probably put salt in the fruitcup and spill soup in his lap. No, I won't either. Peter's always teasing me about losing my head. I'll show him this time.'"

According to Beth's way of thinking, men guests could always be impressed by plenty of good food, women by an immaculate house. The present emergency called for both.

"Flonze cleaned, silver and brass polished, cake made, vegetables ready"—late that afternoon Beth checked over her list on weary fingers.

Fruitcup finished and put on ice, dishes laid out—5:30; strawberries hulled and sugared, cream whipped and sweetened—5:45. Then Tim had to be conducted, messy but jovial through a great bowl of oatmeal.

She was just tucking the baby into his crib when there came the unmistakable sound of rattly, wheezing Miranda—the family car, turning into the driveway.

Beth reached her bedroom closet in three leaps. Thank heavens for modern clothes that slip on over the head in a single motion! Thank heavens for shingled hair! Two minutes later she was at the door, all in white, a calm and graciously smiling hostess Mrs. Clarke—how nice of you; and Mr. Clarke! Peter's grin made a silent background of husbandly pride and affection.

The dinner proceeded with the smoothness of perfection. From green sherbet glasses, to the last delicious crumb of strawberry shortcake, not a dish could have looked or tasted better, and the Clarkes were outspokenly appreciative.

"My dear, you're simply marvelous," Mrs. Clarke insisted, as they lingered with real regret over their good-bys. "Such a wonderful dinner; and you do it all so easily and so calmly."

Beth glowed with delight. "Oh, it wasn't one bit of trouble. It's all in being systematic, I guess." And at that, over his wife's blond head, Jim Clarke gave his hostess a deliberate and whole-hearted wink.

Fiercely attacking the great piles of dirty dishes, Beth pondered the meaning of that wink. Could it be—splash! went a spoon into the half-filled gravy boat! Beth sprang away from the splattering drops, bent over her frock to look for possible damage, and groaned aloud in sudden and utter consternation. Picot-edged inner seams, stitched outlines instead of patch pockets, indentations where buttons should have been—her white crepe de chine sports frock was quite obviously wrong side out!

"Oh, Peter," she wailed, as he came bustling back from his trip to the station. "Oh, Peter, why didn't you tell me?"

"Tell you what?" He followed her tragically pointing finger and roared with laughter. "Wrong side out! That surely is a good one. I never noticed."

"But Mr. Clarke did, I'm sure. That's why he winked at me when his wife was saying I was so efficient. Oh dear, and you said he hated carelessness above all things?"

"Carelessness? Jim Clarke? Why, he's the world's most absent-minded man. Once, when we were in college..."

Beth interrupted, ferociously calm: "Peter, what Clarke was that?"

He gazed at her blankly. "Why, Jim Clarke, of course. Down from Boston for a visit. I ran into him on Broad street. You've often heard me talk about Jim Clarke. Once when we were in college..."

"Peter Blythe, you never mentioned such a person in your life. You never do mention anything, 'Clarke' to me meant just one person, your boss..."

"You poor infant!" Peter sank onto the davenport and gathered her into his arms. "So you went to all that trouble, and thought you had made such a hit..."

"And then spoiled it by putting on my dress wrong side out."

"But the big joke," confessed Peter, "is that Clarke isn't my boss any more."

"What?"

"Yep—district manager."

"A raise?"

"Sure."

She snuggled contentedly against him.

"Oh, Peter—and you never told me. It's perfectly great, and maybe by the time you get to be vice president I'll really be calm and efficient and everything."

"Maybe," he grinned down at her, "but I rather hope not."

BROADCASTING PROGRAMS OFFER VARIETY FOR ALL

Broadcasting Programs Offer Variety For All

There is probably no one who is entirely pleased with every radio program he hears. Some of us feel there is entirely too much jazz "on the air." Others think there should be fewer performances by old time fiddlers. We can all find things to complain about.

Please remember that you and I have different tastes from our friends. And our friends have just as much right to their kind of radio entertainment as we have to ours.

After all, we do not like every motion picture we see, nor enjoy every concert, nor are we thrilled at every play. It is our nature to be individuals, with personal likes and dislikes and for that we may be very thankful.

The broadcaster cannot be an individualist. Like the motion picture producer, or the orchestra director, he must strive to please as many people as much of the time as possible by providing varied, balanced programs. Among the classical programs he must intersperse some jazz. For those who want them, he must provide sport reports, weather forecasts, market information and the like. Naturally, no one of these programs is going to meet with unanimous approval. But he knows from the thousands of letters he receives daily that all are wanted.

The remarkable thing to me is that the broadcaster meets this dilemma so well. With all the variety of tastes he must cater to, he still manages to please each of us most of the time.

BROADCASTING PROGRAMS OFFER VARIETY FOR ALL

Broadcasting Programs Offer Variety For All

There is probably no one who is entirely pleased with every radio program he hears. Some of us feel there is entirely too much jazz "on the air." Others think there should be fewer performances by old time fiddlers. We can all find things to complain about.

Please remember that you and I have different tastes from our friends. And our friends have just as much right to their kind of radio entertainment as we have to ours.

After all, we do not like every motion picture we see, nor enjoy every concert, nor are we thrilled at every play. It is our nature to be individuals, with personal likes and dislikes and for that we may be very thankful.

The broadcaster cannot be an individualist. Like the motion picture producer, or the orchestra director, he must strive to please as many people as much of the time as possible by providing varied, balanced programs. Among the classical programs he must intersperse some jazz. For those who want them, he must provide sport reports, weather forecasts, market information and the like. Naturally, no one of these programs is going to meet with unanimous approval. But he knows from the thousands of letters he receives daily that all are wanted.

The remarkable thing to me is that the broadcaster meets this dilemma so well. With all the variety of tastes he must cater to, he still manages to please each of us most of the time.

Human Salvage

THIS is a mechanical age, an era in which machines do some of the mightiest work of the world. It is a characteristic of this era that the capitalist is extraordinarily solicitous about the welfare of the Diesel engines in his employ, the workman about the automobile that takes him to his job. Under the circumstances it is to be expected that regard for human life would be slight. But thanks to the hospital betterment movement begun 13 years ago by the American College of Surgeons repair of human bodies and minds is being given as much thought as that of machines. What is more, results of this human salvage are apparent in the lowered hospital mortality rate just as surely as the saving of machinery is visible in a corporation's account books.

Today the average total death rate for the hundreds of hospitals which have been approved by the American College of Surgeons as being safe for care of the sick is only 4 per 100 patients. When one considers that this figure includes those many emergency patients who arrive in a comatose or dying condition the realization comes that these hospitals and the physicians working in them are doing a truly remarkable job of salvaging wrecked humanity. Through their achievements the hospital has now become a place to inspire hope rather than fear.

The vast improvement in mortality rates among approved or standardized hospitals, as they are known, has come about almost wholly through the high standards set by the American College of Surgeons and their observance on the part of members of the medical profession. These minimum standards which hospitals must meet in order to gain approval prevent unqualified physicians from practicing in such institutions, require the keeping of clinical records, demand a review of all cases resulting in death, make laboratory examinations essential, in short, seek to improve all phases of hospital activities. It is rather amazing to learn that 13 years ago only 89 hospitals in the United States and Canada met the above so-called minimum requirements. Now 2,063 hospitals meet the standards for the safe and efficient care of the sick and injured established by the surgeons' association.

The number of hospitals has increased stupendously since 1918, the year in which the American College of Surgeons began its program of inspecting and improving hospitals. If there had been no organized effort to align these institutions in a movement for better care of patients it is quite probable that the public would be at the mercy of unethical and inefficient persons who were allowed to work side by side with reputable physicians and hospital personnel. Now prospective patients can choose their hospitals from an approved list of institutions which are known to meet standards of good care. For this service the public owes a debt of gratitude to the American College of Surgeons and to the hospitals that have voluntarily met the standards.

What could be of more concern to the people of these two great nations—the United States and Canada—than good health and preservation of man power? On this depends the happiness, the safety and the prosperity of the nation, as well as all good things in this world. The standardized hospitals, now 2,063 in number, are strong fortresses from which the great army of health—doctors, nurses, and their co-workers—can successfully battle disease. Deaths from accidents, heart and kidney diseases, cancer, tuberculosis, arterio-sclerosis or high blood pressure, and many other diseases causing premature death of our citizens can be reduced and held in check by the great corps of workers in standardized hospitals, but only with the intelligent understanding and cooperation of the public.

International Specialists in Road Building

INTERNATIONAL specialists in road building will arrive at Duluth on Thursday for a tour of Minnesota highways. The visitors attending the International Road Congress at Washington, D. C., last week represented every country in Europe. They are studying Minnesota road problems because problems here are similar to old world problems.

They will spend a day at Duluth and at Mesaba Range towns. Thursday night the tour will stop at Hibbing. The second day the visitors will travel south to Minneapolis, stopping at Mille Lacs lake for lunch.

Saturday will be spent in an inspection of Twin City streets, boulevards and bridges. Luncheons will be taken at Stillwater. Sunday the delegates will go to Rochester and Monday leave for Iowa.

Road conditions may be similar, but the traffic is different. Europe has no such large proportions of heavy cars and trucks as we have. The high taxes keep the average car size down to the bantam type. Gasoline is very high and a man must be more than well to do to have a car pile up as big mileage as the ordinary family here attaches to their fivver. European roads of the average kind rarely receive, we believe, the pounding impact which the big cars deliver to our most traveled trunk roads.

High School Homecoming

THREE hundred alumni are expected to return to Staples Saturday, October 25, on the occasion of the third annual homecoming of the Staples high school. A reception will be given for old grads in the morning. In the afternoon there will be a parade and football game between Staples and St. Cloud.

Brainerd people hope that the homecoming idea may get supporters in the Brainerd high school and that it be made an annual event. The local high has an imposing list of alumni who have "made good" in many fields of endeavor and who would relish to come home and inspect the new high school and to see how education in all its departments has made a signal advance. A most interesting program can be arranged.

Cross Lake at Low Stage

CROSS lake, usually a body of water seven miles long and a mile wide or better, has suffered from drought and other depletion this year. Where water was 16 feet to 20 feet in past years, there is now dry land. H. Ingalls, who it will be remembered years ago ran the first commercial launch on Serpentine lake between Crosby and Deerwood, later established a summer resort on Cross lake. He walked out on the lake bed the other day and recovered an anchor he had lost in 16 feet of water.

Daggett brook has retreated until it can be spanned with a fish pole. Cross lake waters run into the Big Pine and thence eventually to the Mississippi river.

BRAINERD HIGH SCHOOL, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1930

Number 6

WARRIORS DEFEAT STAPLES ELEVEN
IN FIRST HOME GAME OF SEASONCAPTAIN GARVEY'S PROPHECY
FULFILLED; FINAL SCORE
IS 20 TO 0

Fighting for three quarters with a two-point lead, the High School "Warriors" succeeded in piling up three touchdowns on a badly fired Staples team in the final period to win their first home game Friday, 20-0. The Brainerd team played most of the game in Staples' territory, narrowly missing their first touchdown in the second quarter, prevented by the gun for the half.

The teams were fairly evenly matched in weight but the Brainerd boys showed much more stamina for which credit is to be given to the coaching of Mr. Dammann and Mr. Taylor. The offensive line was functioning very effectively and opened holes in the Staples' line through which Foster, Gabiou and Hogan succeeded in making some nice, consistent gains.

Brainerd gained two points in the first quarter when Foster rushed through and blocked a punt that rebounded back of the Staples' goal line. For the rest of the first half and during the third quarter the teams seemed to be fighting fairly evenly, the ball remaining in the Staples' territory mostly due to the excellent punting of Foster. Foster out-punted the Staples back in every exchange.

At the beginning of the fourth quarter, the Blue and White team opened the winning drive, passing, running the ends, and battering the line; the Brainerd team seemed impossible to stop. Hogan scored the first touchdown by circling Staples' right end. The try for the point after the touchdown was unsuccessful.

The second touchdown was obtained in a similar manner. The Brainerd team battered its way to within scoring distance and Gabiou carried the ball over. The try for the extra point failed, leaving the score, 14-0.

Again just before the end of the game, Brainerd succeeded in making their last touchdown by a pass from Gabiou to Hogan. Marshall tried to drop kick for the extra point but failed. The game ended with the score 20-0.

The line-up was as follows:
Brainerd—Marshall, B. Wygle, le; G. Wygle, Lukens, re; Garvey (Captain), T. Armstrong, Patterson, rt; Hass, lg; Wareing, Koeck, rg; Swanson, Frank, t; Templeton, lb; Gabiou, qb; Hogan, h; Foster, fb.
Staples—Halliday, re; Kennedy, le; Probst, rt; Reed, lt; Clausen, rg; Stone, lg; Alden, c; Mraz, rh; Tevlin, qb; Hanson, lb; Walker, fb.

TELEPHONE CO.

EXPLAINS WORK

MODEL SWITCHBOARD AND LINE
USED TO ACQUAINT STUDENTS
WITH INSTRUMENT

Something extremely different in the way of assembly calls was the one held yesterday morning in the auditorium.

A pleasant view painted on a canvas about 3 by 4 containing a telephone office, two or three homes in the distance and some beautiful shrubbery was the first thing that met the eye. Upon further notice, however, a small switch-board and three wall phones were disclosed on the canvas.

Mr. H. Hoffmann, manager of the Brainerd Bell Telephone Co., explained that we were to have the privilege of discovering all the "dark secrets" concerning an instrument which is probably used more than all others—the telephone.

Miss Sandberg, a St. Cloud operator, disclosed all the mechanism of telephone operating in a clear, distinct and interesting manner, every one thoroughly understanding all facts given.

There are 20 telephone operators answering approximately 1,000 calls a day, quite a big job to handle. Each operator is seated before a switchboard similar to the one which was shown on the canvas, having many numbers before her, which she may answer being able to call any one, however.

Attached to this switchboard are 24 cords of three different colors, to avoid disconnection.

Often one blames the operator for certain mistakes which are not her fault. This was brought out very cleverly with the aid of Julius Viken, chief linesman and Miss Cecil Kampmann, chief operator of the Brainerd branch. It showed how often one forgets a number and blames the receiving of a wrong one on the operator; or the door bell rings while one is waiting for the other party to answer and the operator has to apologize and take the blame for another's mistake. There are at least four or five other things which must be corrected by the subscriber before exceptional service by the operator can be received.

Thus some useful knowledge was gained through the generosity of the Bell Telephone Co. and many mistakes can be now corrected through this knowledge.

ALUMNI

There was a slight mistake in our Braineronian last week. We said that David Weber, 1930 graduate now attending U. of M., spent the week end at home. We were just a week ahead of time, for it was this weekend instead of last that David spent a town.

Russell Nelson, Claude and Clarence Holden of the 1930 class, Carl Zapfe and Malcolm Ellison, '29 graduates, all students at the state University, spent the weekend at their homes in Brainerd.

Harry Goedderz '29, Freshman at the St. Cloud Teachers' College, was at home over the week-end.

Ross Olmstead spent the weekend at the home of Miss Walkup in Minneapolis, where he was the guest of her brother, Bob, who is attending Carleton College.

ART CLASSES WILL
EXHIBIT POSTERS
AT STATE M. E. A.SEVEN STUDENTS HAVE WORK
CHOSEN BY BINNEY-SMITH
MAN FOR HIS CO.

Seven students of the Brainerd high school art classes will have their posters exhibited at the M. E. A. convention this fall, under the Binney-Smith Co. color section to represent their colors which the Brainerd art classes use. Four of the students, Janet Kampmann, Lillian Britton, Elizabeth Irvine and Fanny Quinlan, are in the advanced art class. Their posters are original and the subject is advanced color composition. The other three students, John Folsom, Julia Peterson and Lawrence Liners are in first year art and the subject of their posters is beginning theory and design.

L. F. Bryngleson, a representative of the Binney-Smith Co., visited the art classes on his way to Hibbing, Minn., and made a special trip back to get the posters.

Miss Madge True is art supervisor for the school.

EXCHANGE

Here's something for Brainerd to be proud of; it is taken from the Pine Tree Post of Bemidji concerning the Brainerd-Bemidji football game: "This was one of the cleanest games played on a Bemidji gridiron. Brainerd deserves a lot of credit for the fine spirit they showed and the way they kept coming back for all Bemidji could give."

Doesn't that sound nice? Let's have the other teams we play have reason to say the same thing.

Evidently the Pine Tree Post editors like our poem—"There are meters of water." This was in Weezy's Sneezes a few weeks previous. They stated that it would be of particular interest to the boys.

Thank you, Bemidji!

ELECT OFFICERS AND ADVISORS

President—Robert Jackson
Vice President—Elizabeth Patterson
Secretary—Genevieve Sweet
Treasurer—Eugene Swanson
The advisors chosen were Miss Farranckop, Miss Laipale and Miss Flueck. Nothing further was done at this meeting. Dues and such matters will probably be decided at the next meeting.

Soliloquy of a Senior

Why, oh why, is it imperative to have my picture taken? I can't take a good picture. Last year I made an attempt and the results were very disturbing to my peace of mind. I sincerely hoped that in my Senior year I could wiggle through without a picture but it looks hopeless now. I gaze in my mirror and it reflects nothing to write home about but in a photograph I always get a look in my eye that looks like I don't look.

Mr. Penrose: "Name some production in which the supply exceeds the demand."
Art H.: "Trouble!"

FRESHMEN ORGANIZE

The freshmen election of officers was held in the Junior assembly on Monday. The following officers were elected:

President—Loren Brandt.
Vice President—Allan Paine.
Secretary—Leroy Anderson.
Treasurer—Gladya Zander.
Mr. Taylor, Mr. LaMeter, Miss Swanson and Miss Oerting were chosen as advisors. The freshmen were told that the faculty expected a good year and good marks from them.

GIVES ACCOUNT OF
PANAMA SPORTSDR. A. K. COHEN TELLS STUDENTS OF SPORTING EVENTS
WITNESSED

El fights, cock fights and other combats between animals were the main items in the varied and interesting talk given in the auditorium, Friday morning, by Dr. A. K. Cohen.

It seems that a number of years ago, Dr. Cohen, at the invitation of the Government, visited in Central America and especially in Panama, and thus, at the request of the faculty committee both students and teachers, alike were given a most unusual treat in the portrayal of the most interesting items viewed and partaken of in his memorable journey.

Cocoon milk as a refreshing drink was the first thing noticed according to the doctor. He explained all about the outer husk and the cool, delicious drink contained inside, giving the audience a better knowledge of the fruit than any text book could.

Next he noticed a group of old women who were selling lottery tickets which were to be used on the Mayor's Day in the near future.

Now Mayor's Day in Panama is a very much celebrated occasion and as Dr. Cohen was the guest of the Mayor, a very interesting description was given.

On the morning they attended a lottery drawing at which a prize of $7,000 is given. A girl dressed as if for confirmation draws five tickets out of a large glass bowl, the tickets of which receives the prize.

The Combat Between Two Cocks. The next attended a cock fight. The fighters being animals in all their sports instead of persons as is the case in our country.

The cock fight was very humorous and exciting in the way the doctor pictured the fight and then the defeat or conquest. Betting is done in Spanish on all sides just as at horse races in France, as the cocks fight back and forth until one is wounded in a vulnerable spot located in the rear part of the brain.

When it came time to eat, which was about noon, the Mayor and his party went to a hotel, built very low, where Doctor Cohen partook of a most delicious meal until he discovered what constituted the main dish. Upon his inquiry he gained the knowledge that it was one of the species of Octopi. The meal was then resumed but not enjoyed very thoroughly nor attacked with as great a zest.

The Bull Fight

After lunch, the crowning event of the day took place, "The Bull Fight." It appears as nearly all the inhabitants from all about partake in this sport which is held in a large arena inclosed by a fence and many seats. As the Mayor and his party sat opposite the grand stand, they saw everything.

A great silence descends upon the arena. The fight begins! In comes the bull, long legged and slim of body, incited by spear thrusts which have been inflicted upon his shoulders! At a great applause, the fighter comes in flourishing a red cloth which makes the bull still angrier. As the bull lowers his head and closes his eyes, he charges and if the fighter is adept at this sport, he can easily jump out of the bull's way. "This he usually does." As the fighter thrusts the red cloth first on this side and then on that, the bull is tired out and, stopping stock still, tries to decide which way to turn and is stabbed just as he starts to charge again. There are cases according to the doctor when the bull does not close his eyes and the so-called Toreador is tossed up into the air and falls either unconscious or dead upon the ground. In this instance the bull is cheered as much as the fighter would have been would he have conquered.

Attempt Stage Tiger Bull Fight Fails

In a small cage a tiger and a bull meet each other in combat. At this particular fight during the onslaught, the bull, as he charged at the tiger, missed him and broke two bars out of the cage through which the tiger ran. He, half leaping and half jumping, sped toward the grandstand. As it is a custom to carry weapons in this country the animal was put to death with six people. Eighteen other people were also injured. This showing that our sports are better even though done by humans. Thus ended the Tiger-Bull fight.

A special treat was given to the students in the rendering of a very delightful Spanish song which was well received and given.

UPPER CLASSMEN LAY ASIDE ALL
DIGNITY TO FROLIC AT BIRCHDALE

HEAR YE!

Our rings have come! Yeah Bo! They're about the best-looking emblems that I've ever seen, but the boys' are prettier. (As usual. Did you ever see anything that the boys didn't get the advantage in?)

But speaking of boys: Yesterday morning the rings were hardly in the office when Janet Kampmann and Elizabeth Irvine were pestering the life out of Lyle Mayo to see them.

They even tagged the defenseless laid down to the jeweler's where the rings were taken out of the packages. Consequently, Lyle being a gentleman, Janet Kampmann was the first Senior to get her class ring, "Pat" Irvine was second, and Lyle, third.

At noon Louise Clausen, Gay Kinney, and Gerry Cass had theirs also and then last evening, the jewelers had more business than they've had in years—just dealing out rings to the joyful Seniors.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS
PREPARE SUPPERS
TO EARN HONORSGIRLS PLAN TO MAKE FURNITURE UNDER DIRECTION
OF MR. ROSEL

Last Thursday the Netpaw girls enjoyed a six o'clock supper, which was prepared and served by the following girls, who wished to earn camp fire honors for cooking: Lillie Casey, Marie Erdman, Marcella Favrou and Vera Young. The menu consisted of chop suey, buns, vegetable salad, cake and coffee. It being Marie Rau's birthday the next day, the girls pleasantly surprised her with a birthday cake.

Following the supper there was a short business meeting. The girls with the aid of Mr. Rosel planned to work in the manual training room at the next meeting. Some of the things the girls decided to make were foot stools, magazine racks and shelves.

Sidelights on the Game

We feel the Juniors would have been far more successful if they had sold ice cream cones and pop at the game instead of hot dogs and popcorn balls. Tearing from one end of the field to the other following their team, and getting all "het up" about the score, plus the heat of the sun had everyone just sweating hot.

Dr. Cohen told us Friday that in Panama, their sport was a combat between animals instead of between people as our sport is. The warm sun evidently got two dogs feeling "Panamanian" for they attempted to stage a battle out in the middle of the football field. But the referee objected.

Those fences around the field are a good idea. Besides keeping people back where they belong, you can sit on the ground and hang on to the wires and be almost as comfortable as in your rocking chair at home.

Modern History Classes
Make Medieval Castles

In this day and age, one of the methods employed by teachers in making history more interesting is that of projects or contracts. In Miss Walkup's three classes in Modern History there has been much interest shown in the construction of medieval castles. An especially good one was made by Cyril DeRosier—a square one with fancy decorations around the top and oblong narrow windows. Thru windows similar to these did Normans and English pour down arrows upon their foes.

The castle is completely surrounded by a thick wall, by a moat and by palisades which protect the army besieged within the castle. The only means of entrance was a drawbridge, which works with chains quite like those of the days of Ivanhoe. Drawings of castles were made by Raymond Wise, Malcolm LeVasseur, and Mickie Garvey.

COMING OR GOING
WE CATCH 'EM

Miss Winfred Spencer witnessed the Stanford-Minnesota football game at Memorial Stadium, Minneapolis Saturday.

Harold Moe spent the week end in Minneapolis Saturday. He attended the Stanford-Minnesota football game. Miss Schow and Miss Olson spent the week end in the Twin Cities.

Gay K.: "Well, Lee as a success you've been a failure."
Lee C.: "Yes, but as a failure I've been a success."

BEAUTIFUL WEATHER AND EXCELLENT SETTING ADD TO PICNIC SUCCESS

Dozens of cars, parked by the high school before three thirty Wednesday afternoon marked the means of getting to the Junior-Senior picnic at Birchdale. Having the affair at Birchdale was the outcome of much debate between the two classes concerned.

A group of seven girls garbed in knickers, sweaters and hiking outfits, added variety to their good time by hiking most of the way out. And Birchdale is over eight miles from town.

Everyone worked up a good appetite by playing games (in which the teachers especially showed their good sportsmanship). A hot meal was served, consisting of escalloped potatoes, American chop suey, buttered rolls, and for dessert, ice cream cones and Golden Cream doughnuts.

After the meal, more games were played, and some of the more nature loving students wandered about the beach and the woods. Some of the talented members of the class played the piano in the pavilion.

Tri-Hi Initiation Brings
In 23 New Members

Did you ever get an empty feeling in your stomach and feel as if your heart was just aching to jump out of your throat? You have? Then you can sympathize with the poor pledges who awaited their turn to be converted into an oatmeal cast and to have their hair washed with a lovely concoction of eggs, bananas, and mayonnaise oil.

After going through several other terrifying actions; after all the papers and mess was collected; and after half of the "goo" was washed off, hot dogs and popcorn balls were served, three of the pledges being able to partake of the refreshments.

And now there are twenty-three new Tri-Hi girls.

ASSEMBLY

Eats galore — meatballs, potatoes, rolls, ice cream and wafers. All that was served at the Tri-Hi and Hi-Y banquet last Tuesday night. After their appetites were satisfied the club members settled back in their chairs and lent their ears to the speakers of the evening. C. Stanley Lamb, the secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Minnesota, was the chief speaker. He is a very interesting speaker and told his listeners many incidents that happened to him on his travels, which are many. He advised the clubs to take an active part in school life and prepare themselves for the great outside world. This man was very interested in the Tri-Hi as it is the first girl's organization in the Y. M. C. A. that he has ever seen that was successful. Another speaker was none other than our own coach, Mr. Dammann. He urged the students to buy season tickets and back up the football team. Mr. Cobb, our superintendent, gave a very enlightening talk on making the "Y" our headquarters, even when visiting in other cities. Their speeches will be a great help to the clubs in the future.

Human Salvage

THIS is a mechanical age, an era in which machines do some of the mightiest work of the world. It is a characteristic of this era that the capitalist is extraordinarily solicitous about the welfare of the Diesel engines in his employ, the workman about the automobile that takes him to his job. Under the circumstances it is to be expected that regard for human life would be slight. But thanks to the hospital betterment movement begun 13 years ago by the American College of Surgeons repair of human bodies and minds is being given as much thought as that of machines. What is more, results of this human salvage are apparent in the lowered hospital mortality rate just as surely as the saving of machinery is visible in a corporation's account books.

Today the average total death rate for the hundreds of hospitals which have been approved by the American College of Surgeons as being safe for care of the sick is only 4 per 100 patients. When one considers that this figure includes those many emergency patients who arrive in a comatose or dying condition the realization comes that these hospitals and the physicians working in them are doing a truly remarkable job of salvaging wrecked humanity. Through their achievements the hospital has now become a place to inspire hope rather than fear.

The vast improvement in mortality rates among approved or standardized hospitals, as they are known, has come about almost wholly through the high standards set by the American College of Surgeons and their observance on the part of members of the medical profession. These minimum standards which hospitals must meet in order to gain approval prevent unqualified physicians from practicing in such institutions, require the keeping of clinical records, demand a review of all cases resulting in death, make laboratory examinations essential, in short, seek to improve all phases of hospital activities. It is rather amazing to learn that 13 years ago only 89 hospitals in the United States and Canada met the above so-called minimum requirements. Now 2,063 hospitals meet the standards for the safe and efficient care of the sick and injured established by the surgeons' association.

The number of hospitals has increased stupendously since 1918, the year in which the American College of Surgeons began its program of inspecting and improving hospitals. If there had been no organized effort to align these institutions in a movement for better care of patients it is quite probable that the public would be at the mercy of unethical and inefficient persons who were allowed to work side by side with reputable physicians and hospital personnel. Now prospective patients can choose their hospitals from an approved list of institutions which are known to meet standards of good care. For this service the public owes a debt of gratitude to the American College of Surgeons and to the hospitals that have voluntarily met the standards.

What could be of more concern to the people of these two great nations—the United States and Canada—than good health and preservation of man power? On this depends the happiness, the safety and the prosperity of the nation, as well as all good things in this world. The standardized hospitals, now 2,063 in number, are strong fortresses from which the great army of health—doctors, nurses, and their co-workers—can successfully battle disease. Deaths from accidents, heart and kidney diseases, cancer, tuberculosis, arterio-sclerosis or high blood pressure, and many other diseases causing premature death of our citizens can be reduced and held in check by the great corps of workers in standardized hospitals, but only with the intelligent understanding and cooperation of the public.

International Specialists in Road Building

INTERNATIONAL specialists in road building will arrive at Duluth on Thursday for a tour of Minnesota highways. The visitors attending the International Road Congress at Washington, D. C., last week represented every country in Europe. They are studying Minnesota road problems because problems here are similar to old world problems.

They will spend a day at Duluth and at Mesaba Range towns. Thursday night the tour will stop at Hibbing. The second day the visitors will travel south to Minneapolis, stopping at Mille Lacs lake for lunch.

Saturday will be spent in an inspection of Twin City streets, boulevards and bridges. Luncheons will be taken at Stillwater. Sunday the delegates will go to Rochester and Monday leave for Iowa.

Road conditions may be similar, but the traffic is different. Europe has no such large proportions of heavy cars and trucks as we have. The high taxes keep the average car size down to the bantam type. Gasoline is very high and a man must be more than well to do to have a car pile up as big mileage as the ordinary family here attaches to their fivver. European roads of the average kind rarely receive, we believe, the pounding impact which the big cars deliver to our most traveled trunk roads.

High School Homecoming

THREE hundred alumni are expected to return to Staples Saturday, October 25, on the occasion of the third annual homecoming of the Staples high school. A reception will be given for old grads in the morning. In the afternoon there will be a parade and football game between Staples and St. Cloud.

Brainerd people hope that the homecoming idea may get supporters in the Brainerd high school and that it be made an annual event. The local high has an imposing list of alumni who have "made good" in many fields of endeavor and who would relish to come home and inspect the new high school and to see how education in all its departments has made a signal advance. A most interesting program can be arranged.

Cross Lake at Low Stage

CROSS lake, usually a body of water seven miles long and a mile wide or better, has suffered from drought and other depletion this year. Where water was 16 feet to 20 feet in past years, there is now dry land. H. Ingalls, who it will be remembered years ago ran the first commercial launch on Serpent lake between Crosby and Deerwood, later established a summer resort on Cross lake. He walked out on the lake bed the other day and recovered an anchor he had lost in 16 feet of water.

Daggett brook has retreated until it can be spanned with a fish pole. Cross lake waters run into the Big Pine and thence eventually to the Mississippi river.

WARRIORS DEFEAT STAPLES ELEVEN
IN FIRST HOME GAME OF SEASONCAPTAIN GARVEY'S PROPHECY
FULFILLED; FINAL SCORE
IS 20 TO 0

Fighting for three quarters with a two-point lead, the High School "Warriors" succeeded in piling up three touchdowns on a badly tired Staples team in the final period to win their first home game Friday, 20-0. The Brainerd team played most of the game in Staples' territory, narrowly missing their first touchdown in the second quarter, prevented by the gun for the half.

The teams were fairly evenly matched in weight but the Brainerd boys showed much more stamina for which credit is to be given to the coaching of Mr. Dammann and Mr. Taylor. The offensive line was functioning very effectively and opened holes in the Staples' line through which Foster, Gabiou and Hogan succeeded in making some nice, consistent gains.

Brainerd gained two points in the first quarter when Foster rushed through and blocked a punt that rebounded back of the Staples' goal line. For the rest of the first half and during the third quarter the teams seemed to be fighting fairly evenly, the ball remaining in the Staples' territory mostly due to the excellent punting of Foster. Foster out-punted the Staples back in every exchange.

At the beginning of the fourth quarter, the Blue and White team opened the winning drive, passing, running the ends, and battering the line; the Brainerd team seemed impossible to stop. Hogan scored the first touchdown by circling Staples' right end. The try for the point after the touchdown was unsuccessful.

The second touchdown was obtained in a similar manner. The Brainerd team battered its way to within scoring distance and Gabiou carried the ball over. The try for the extra point failed, leaving the score, 14-0.

Again just before the end of the game, Brainerd succeeded in making their last touchdown by a pass from Gabiou to Hogan. Marshall tried to drop kick for the extra point but failed. The game ended with the score 20-0.

The line-up was as follows:
Brainerd—Marshall, B. Wyle, lg; G. Wyle, lk; Lukens, re; Garvey (Captain), t; Armstrong, Patterson, rt; Hass, lg; Wareing, Koeck, rk; Swanson, Frank, r; Templeton, lb; Gabiou, qb; Hogan, h; Foster, fb.
Staples—Halliday, re; Kennedy, lg; Probst, rt; Reed, lt; Clausen, rg; Stone, lk; Alden, c; Mraz, rh; Tevlin, qb; Hanson, lb; Walker, fb.

TELEPHONE CO.
EXPLAINS WORKMODEL SWITCHBOARD AND LINE
USED TO ACQUAINT STUDENTS
WITH INSTRUMENT

Something extremely different in the way of assembly calls was the one held yesterday morning in the auditorium.

A pleasant view painted on a canvas about 3 by 4 containing a telephone office, two or three homes in the distance and some beautiful shrubbery was the first thing that met the eye. Upon further notice, however, a small switch-board and three wall phones were disclosed on the canvas.

Mr. H. Hoffmann, manager of the Brainerd Bell Telephone Co., explained that we were to have the privilege of discovering all the "dark secrets" concerning an instrument which is probably used more than all others—the telephone.

Miss Sandberg, a St. Cloud operator, disclosed all the mechanism of telephone operating in a most clear, distinct and interesting manner, every one thoroughly understanding all facts given.

There are 20 telephone operators answering approximately 1,000 calls a day, quite a big job to handle.

Each operator is seated before a switchboard similar to the one which was shown on the canvas, having many numbers before her, which she may answer being able to call anyone, however.

Attached to this switchboard are 34 cords of three different colors, to avoid disconnection.

Often one blames the operator for certain mistakes which are not her fault. This was brought out very cleverly with the aid of Julius Viken, chief linesman and Miss Cecil Kampmann, chief operator of the Brainerd branch. It showed how often one forgets a number and blames the receiving of a wrong one on the operator; or the door bell rings while one is waiting for the other party to answer and the operator has to apologize and take the blame for another's mistake. There are at least four or five other things which must be corrected by the subscriber before exceptional service by the operator can be received.

Thus some useful knowledge was gained through the generosity of the Bell Telephone Co. and many mistakes can be now corrected through this knowledge.

ALUMNI

There was a slight mistake in our Brainerdian last week. We said that David Weber, 1930 graduate now attending U. of M., spent the week end at home. We were just a week ahead of time, for it was this weekend instead of last that David spent at home.

Russell Nelson, Claude and Clarence Holden of the 1930 class, Carl Zapfe and Malcolm Ellison, '29 graduates, all students at the state University, spent the weekend at their homes in Brainerd.

Harry Goedderz '29, Freshman at the St. Cloud Teachers' College, was at home over the week-end.

Ross Olmstead spent the weekend at the home of Miss Walkup in Minneapolis, where he was the guest of her brother, Bob, who is attending Carleton College.

Jane Burton spent the weekend at her home. She is a student of the St. Cloud Teachers' College.

ART CLASSES WILL
EXHIBIT POSTERS
AT STATE M. E. A.SEVEN STUDENTS HAVE WORK
CHOSEN BY BINNEY-SMITH
MAN FOR HIS CO.

Seven students of the Brainerd high school art classes will have their posters exhibited at the M. E. A. convention this fall, under the Binney-Smith Co. color section to represent their colors which the Brainerd art classes use. Four of the students, Janet Kampmann, Lillian Britton, Elizabeth Irvine and Fanny Quillen, are in the advanced art class. Their posters are original and the subject is advanced color composition. The other three students, John Folsom, Julia Peterson and Lawrence Liners are in first year art and the subject of their posters is beginning theory and design.

L. F. Bryngleson, a representative of the Binney-Smith Co., visited the art classes on his way to Hibbing, Minn., and made a special trip back to get the posters.

Miss Madge True is art supervisor for the school.

EXCHANGE

Here's something for Brainerd to be proud of; it is taken from the Pine Tree Post of Bemidji concerning the Brainerd-Bemidji football game: "This was one of the cleanest games played on a Bemidji gridiron. Brainerd deserves a lot of credit for the fine spirit they showed and the way they kept coming back for all Bemidji could give."

Doesn't that sound nice? Let's have the other teams we play have reason to say the same thing.

Evidently the Pine Tree Post editors like our poem—"There are meters of water." This was in Weezy's Sneezes a few weeks previous. They stated that it would be of particular interest to the boys.

Thank you, Bemidji!

ROBERT JACKSON
TO LEAD SOPHSUNDERCLASSMEN ORGANIZE AND
ELECT OFFICERS AND ADVISORS

President Robert Jackson
Vice President Elizabeth Patterson

Secretary Genevieve Tweet

Treasurer Eugene Swanson

The advisors chosen were Miss Far-ranck, Miss Laipple and Miss Flueck. Nothing further was done at this meeting. Dues and such matters will probably be decided at the next meeting.

Soliloquy of a Senior

Why, oh why, is it imperative to have my picture taken? I can't take a good picture. Last year I made an attempt and the results were very disturbing to my peace of mind. I sincerely hoped that in my Senior year I could wiggle through without a picture but it looks hopeless now. I gaze in my mirror and it reflects nothing to write home about but in a photograph I always get a look in my eye that looks like I don't look.

Mr. Penrose: "Name some production in which the supply exceeds the demand."

Art H: "Trouble"

FRESHMEN ORGANIZE
AND ELECT OFFICERS

The freshmen election of officers was held in the Junior assembly on Monday. The following officers were elected:

President—Loren Brandt.
Vice President—Allan Paine.
Secretary—Leroy Anderson.
Treasurer—Gladys Zander.
Mr. Taylor, Mr. LaMeter, Miss Swanstrom and Miss Oerting were chosen as advisers. The freshmen were told that the faculty expected a good year and good marks from them.

GIVES ACCOUNT OF
WITNESSED

Football fights, cock fights and other combats between animals were the main items in the varied and interesting talk given in the auditorium, Friday morning, by Dr. A. K. Cohen.

It seems that a number of years ago, Dr. Cohen, at the invitation of the Government, visited in Central America and especially in Panama, and thus, at the request of the faculty committee both students and teachers, alike were given a most unusual treat in the portrayal of the most interesting items viewed and partaken of in his memorable journey.

Cocunut milk as a refreshing drink was the first thing noticed according to the doctor. He explained all about the outer husk and the cool, delicious drink contained inside, giving the audience a better knowledge of the fruit than any text book could.

Next he noticed a group of old women who were selling lottery tickets which were to be used on the Mayor's Day in the near future.

Now Mayor's Day in Panama is a very much celebrated occasion and as Dr. Cohen was the guest of the Mayor, a very interesting description was given.

On the morning they attended a lottery drawing at which a prize of $7,000 is given. A girl dressed as if for confirmation draws five tickets out of a large glass bowl, the fifth of which receives the prize.

The Combat Between Two Cocks
They next attended a cock fight, the fighters being animals in all their sports instead of persons as is the case in our country.

The cock fight was very humorous and exciting in the way the doctor pictured the fight and then the defeat or conquest. Betting is done in Spanish on all sides just as at horse races in France, as the cocks fight back and forth until one is wounded in a vulnerable spot located in the rear part of the brain.

When it came time to eat, which was about noon, the Mayor and his party went to a hotel, built very low, where Doctor Cohen partook of a most delicious meal until he discovered what constituted the main dish. Upon his inquiry he gained the knowledge that it was one of the species of Octopi. The meal was then resumed but not enjoyed very thoroughly nor attacked with as great a zest.

The Bull Fight

After lunch, the crowning event of the day took place, "The Bull Fight." It appears as nearly all the inhabitants from all about partake in this sport which is held in a large arena inclosed by a fence and many seats. As the Mayor and his party sat opposite the grand stand, they saw everything.

A great silence descends upon the arena. The fight begins! In comes the bull, long legged and slim of body, incited by spear thrusts which have been inflicted upon his shoulders! At a great applause, the fighter comes in flourishing a red cloth which makes the bull still angrier. As the bull lowers his head and closes his eyes, he charges and if the fighter is adept at this sport, he can easily jump out of the bull's way. "This he usually does." As the fighter thrusts the red cloth first on this side and then on that, the bull is tired out and, stopping stock still, tries to decide which way to turn and is stabbed just as he starts to charge again. There are cases according to the doctor when the bull does not close his eyes and the so-called Toreador is tossed up into the air and falls either unconscious or dead upon the ground. In this instance the bull is cheered as much as the fighter would have been would he have conquered.

Attempt Stage Tiger Bull Fight Fails

In a small cage a tiger and a bull meet each other in combat. At this particular fight during the onslaught, the bull, as he charged at the tiger, missed him and broke two bars out of the cage through which the tiger ran. He, half leaping and half jumping, sped toward the grandstand. As it is a custom to carry weapons in this country the animal was put to death with six people. Eighteen other people were also injured. This showing that our sports are better even though done by humans. Thus ended the Tiger-Bull fight.

A special treat was given to the students in the rendering of a very delightful Spanish song which was well received and given.

UPPER CLASSMEN LAY ASIDE ALL
DIGNITY TO FROLIC AT BIRCHDALE

HEAR YE!

Our rings have come! Yeah Bo! They're about the best-looking emblems I've ever seen, but the boys are prettiest. (As usual. Did you ever see anything that the boys didn't get the advantage in?)

But speaking of boys: Yesterday morning the rings were hardly in the office when Janet Kampmann and Elizabeth Irvine were pestering the life out of Lyle Mayo to see them.

They even tagged the defenseless lad down to the jeweler's where the rings were taken out of the packages. Consequently, Lyle being a gentleman, Janet Kampmann was the first Senior to get her class ring, "Pat" Irvine was second, and Lyle, third.

At noon Louise Clausen, Gay Kinney, and Gerry Cass had theirs also and then last evening, the jewelers had more business than they've had in years—just dealing out rings to the joyful Seniors.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS
PREPARE SUPPERS
TO EARN HONORSGIRLS PLAN TO MAKE FURNITURE UNDER DIRECTION
OF MR. ROSEL

Last Thursday the Netopew girls enjoyed a six o'clock supper, which was prepared and served by the following girls, who wished to earn camp fire honors for cooking: Lillie Casey, Marie Erdman, Marcella Favrou and Vera Young. The menu consisted of chop suey, buns, vegetable salad, cake and coffee. It being Marie Rau's birthday the next day, the girls pleasantly surprised her with a birthday cake.

Following the supper there was a short business meeting. The girls with the aid of Mr. Rosel planned to work in the manual training room at their next meeting. Some of the things the girls decided to make were foot stools, magazine racks and shelves.

Sidelights on the Game

We feel the Juniors would have been far more successful if they had sold ice cream cones and pop at the game instead of hot dogs and popcorn balls. Tearing from one end of the field to the other following their team, and getting all "hot up" about the score, plus the heat of the sun had everyone just sweltering hot.

Dr. Cohen told us Friday that in Panama, their sport was a combat between animals instead of between people as our sport is. The warm sun evidently got two dogs feeling "Panamanian," for they attempted to stage a battle out in the middle of the football field. But the referee objected.

Those fences around the field are a good idea. Besides keeping people back where they belong, you can sit on the ground and hang on to the wires and be almost as comfortable as in your rocking chair at home.

Modern History Classes
Make Medieval Castles

In this day and age, one of the methods employed by teachers in making history more interesting is that of projects or contracts. In Miss Walkup's three classes in Modern History there has been much interest shown in the construction of medieval castles. An especially good one was made by Cyril DeRosier—a square one with fancy decorations around the top and oblong narrow windows. Thru windows similar to these did Normans and English pour down arrows upon their foes.

The castle is completely surrounded by a thick wall, by a moat and by palisades which protect the army besieged within the castle. The only means of entrance was a drawbridge, which works with chains quite like those of the days of Ivanhoe.

Drawings of castles were made by Raymond Wise, Malcolm LeVasseur, and Mickie Garvey.

BEAUTIFUL WEATHER AND EXCELLENT SETTING ADD TO PICNIC SUCCESS

Dozens of cars, parked by the high school before three thirty Wednesday afternoon marked the means of getting to the Junior-Senior picnic at Birchdale. Having the affair at Birchdale was the outcome of much debate between the two classes concerned.

A group of seven girls garbed in knickers, sweaters and hiking outfits, added variety to their good time by hiking most of the way out. And Birchdale is over eight miles from town.

Everyone worked up a good appetite by playing games (in which the teachers especially showed their good sportsmanship). A hot meal was served, consisting of scalloped potatoes, American chop suey, buttered rolls, and for dessert, ice cream cones and Golden Cream doughnuts.

LIES SORELY WOUNDED AS INVESTIGATORS PROBE SEA OF RUMORS

TRYING TO LEARN WHO MADE ATTEMPT ON LIFE OF BROADWAY RACKETEER

New York, Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—Jack "Legs" Diamond clung desperately to his life today while the police department's cleverest investigators floundered in a sea of false rumors and theories, trying to learn who attempted to kill the Broadway racketeer, and why.

The same hopelessness that characterized their efforts to solve the Arnold Rothstein murder and other famous underworld crimes of the past hung about detective headquarters as one lead after another was discharged.

The one hint that Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney and his men were agreed upon was that Diamond was ambushed and shot four times in the Monticello hotel Sunday morning by members of his own gang, or at least by allies that he trusted.

Many names familiar in the glittering realm of Broadway night life and the domain of racketeering—from Scarface Al Capone to Ziegfeld chorus girls—were linked with the case as Mulrooney's investigation progressed. But the evidence against each one was so scant that no arrests were considered justified.

The probability is that Diamond, 33-year-old entrepreneur in the bootleg, narcotic and night club business, was framed by rivals into whose territory he was ambitiously trying to "muscle" his unwelcome way, Mulrooney said.

Among those being considered by the investigators in their search for the men who plotted the attack on the racketeer's life are Ted Newberry, notorious Chicago gang lieutenant, said to be a field agent for Capone, New York police are convinced that Capone has been established in the beer-running field here for some time.

In Polyclinic hospital, meanwhile, Diamond lay in a semi-coma, still too weak to be operated on and still losing blood from the four wounds inflicted by his attackers. He faced the crisis today. Physicians said they should know by tonight whether he will recover or whether he will succumb to the threatening symptoms of gangrene and pneumonia.

Even in his few conscious moments, Commissioner Mulrooney said the gangster is seeking to throw police off the trail of his assailants. He has lied repeatedly to detectives who, at intervals, have been allowed to question him.

Marian Roberts, the young titian-haired musical comedy beauty in whose room Diamond's gunmen attackers found their victim, was somewhat heartened by the prospect that she may be released during the day. At police headquarters she has gone tearfully through hours of questioning as a material witness.

And Get Ready to Run

During the trial of a man on a serious charge of theft the evidence was so palpably insufficient that the judge stopped the case and directed the jury to return a verdict of "not guilty." A well-known lawyer, however, who wished to do something for the fee he had received for the defense, claimed the privilege of addressing the court.

JAKE FLEAGLE IS SHOT BY OFFICERS

REFUSED TO SUBMIT TO ARREST BY AUTHORITIES AT BRANSON, MO.

Branson, Mo., Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—A man identified by officers as "Young Jake" Fleagle, surviving fugitive of the notorious Fleagle family implicated in sensational western bank robberies, was shot and dangerously wounded today when he refused to submit to arrest by county officers and secret service men.

The man said to be Fleagle, sought throughout this country and Mexico since he and his brothers were implicated in the Lamar, Colo., bank raid and murders, was felled by a bullet from an officer's gun when the bandit suspect sought to board a Missouri Pacific train here today.

His captors said he reached for his hip pocket "to shoot it out" when they ordered him to throw up his hands. Eight officers, including detectives from Colorado Springs, Kansas City and Los Angeles and federal post office inspectors, met the man on a tip that he was hiding overnight in Branson.

The officers arrived here by train and as they alighted the bandit suspect stepped up to board the train. He was recognized by the group.

"Come on, Jake, you might as well give up," he was warned. Instead, according to the officers, the man reached for a gun. A volley of shots from the officers' group answered the move and the desperado fell with a bullet in his stomach. The wounded man was taken to a

TRYING TO LEARN WHO MADE ATTEMPT ON LIFE OF BROADWAY RACKETEER

New York, Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—Jack "Legs" Diamond clung desperately to his life today while the police department's cleverest investigators floundered in a sea of false rumors and theories, trying to learn who attempted to kill the Broadway racketeer, and why.

The same hopelessness that characterized their efforts to solve the Arnold Rothstein murder and other famous underworld crimes of the past hung about detective headquarters as one lead after another was discharged.

The one hint that Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney and his men were agreed upon was that Diamond was ambushed and shot four times in the Monticello hotel Sunday morning by members of his own gang, or at least by allies that he trusted.

Many names familiar in the glittering realm of Broadway night life and the domain of racketeering—from Scarface Al Capone to Ziegfeld chorus girls—were linked with the case as Mulrooney's investigation progressed. But the evidence against each one was so scant that no arrests were considered justified.

The probability is that Diamond, 33-year-old entrepreneur in the bootleg, narcotic and night club business, was framed by rivals into whose territory he was ambitiously trying to "muscle" his unwelcome way, Mulrooney said.

Among those being considered by the investigators in their search for the men who plotted the attack on the racketeer's life are Ted Newberry, notorious Chicago gang lieutenant, said to be a field agent for Capone, New York police are convinced that Capone has been established in the beer-running field here for some time.

In Polyclinic hospital, meanwhile, Diamond lay in a semi-coma, still too weak to be operated on and still losing blood from the four wounds inflicted by his attackers. He faced the crisis today. Physicians said they should know by tonight whether he will recover or whether he will succumb to the threatening symptoms of gangrene and pneumonia.

Even in his few conscious moments, Commissioner Mulrooney said the gangster is seeking to throw police off the trail of his assailants. He has tied repeatedly to detectives who, at intervals, have been allowed to question him.

Marian Roberts, the young titian-haired musical comedy beauty in whose room Diamond's gunmen attackers found their victim, was somewhat heartened by the prospect that she may be released during the day. At police headquarters she has gone tearfully through hours of questioning as a material witness.

BIG GAMES SPRINKLE SATURDAY'S FOOTBALL PROGRAM

NOTRE DAME VS. CARNEGIE TECH A BIG RUMPUS

ARMY AND HARVARD, ALABAMA AND TENNESSEE, DARTMOUTH AND COLUMBIA

WISCONSIN VS. PENNSYLVANIA WILL ALL PROVIDE MODICUM OF EXCITEMENT

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Oct. 14.—Saturday's national football program is generously sprinkled with big games involving big names, but it shouldn't take little Johnny way back on the last row more than a second to name the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech rumpus at South Bend as the week's best.

Granting that Army and Harvard, Alabama and Tennessee, Dartmouth and Columbia and Wisconsin and Pennsylvania mention a few, will create plenty of excitement, Notre Dame and Carnegie Tech should surpass them all in thrills.

A national championship may ride on that game Saturday and nobody knows it better than Knute Rockne and Judge Steffen, the rival coaches. Carnegie Tech, by way of warning to the Irish, defeated Georgia Tech last week, 21 to 0. The Georgia Tech Plaid whipped was not the Georgia Tech of several seasons back, but a pretty fair team, nevertheless.

Notre Dame "warmed-up" for Carnegie by defeating Southern Methodist University and Navy. Notre Dame, in whipping the Methodists, proved that Carnegie won't win by a passing attack.

Tennessee and Alabama should provide a most lively afternoon's entertainment down in Tuscaloosa. Tennessee, unbeaten in three years, must get licked sooner or later and Alabama, playing in its own backyard, looks like the team to do it. The Vols are badly crippled while Alabama is in the best of shape.

The affair at Cambridge will bring together two untried eleven. Army looked good against Furman and Swarthmore, but that means nothing; Harvard seemed strong against Coast Guard and Springfield, and that means less. Saturday will mark the first time either eleven has met real opposition and the outcome is a toss-up.

Pennsylvania, boasting a 40 to 0 victory over Virginia, travels to Madison to meet a Wisconsin eleven that holds a 34-0 decision over Chicago. Wisconsin is a favorite, but Gentle and Co. well might win.

Michigan State vs. Colgate, another east-midwest contest, should provide plenty of football. Colgate, with the exception of Louisiana, has scored more points in three games than any other team in the country, while Michigan State displayed real power in holding Michigan to a scoreless tie.

Viking History

In a little island in the middle of the Irish sea there is held every year on July 5 (representing midsummer day, old style), the promulgation of the Manx laws. The scene of the ceremony is Tynwald hill, in the Isle of Man.

It is a living relic of the important part played in the history of England by the Vikings, who from the close of the eighth century made plundering excursions to the British Isles, and thence gradually in the western isles of Scotland; in Ireland, where they were met by their brethren coming round by the south, and in Man, whence they spread eastward till they joined forces with their kinsfolk in York.

Warrior and Athlete

Babar the magnificent warring oriental monarch of the Fifteenth century, was apparently tireless, and as proud of his skill as an athlete as of his ability as a general, says an article in the Boston Globe. Once, for the fun of it, he swam the Ganges, performing this stunt, as he explains in his memoirs, "in 33 strokes." At another time he ran around the battlements of a fortress with a man under each arm, leaping the embrasures. But these feats, added to his endless campaigns, weakened him, and he died suddenly at the age of forty-eight, leaving his new empire to a son whose ability was less conspicuous.

Honolulu Smokeless

Honolulu is a smokeless city and for that reason it is rated clean or free from the smudge which has marred the structural appearance of New York and particularly Pittsburgh. Except for the chimneys of the gas and electric plants there are no chimneys in Honolulu. In the first place heating systems are not needed and the greater number of housewives or servants use gas for cooking. Some more cook outdoors and others on a charcoal stove which does not give out any smoke. This interesting Hawaiian city, it was pointed out, is not a profitable field for painters.

PROPOSE TO HOLD NOTRE DAME-N. W. GAME IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—A proposal that the Notre Dame-Northwestern football game Nov. 22 be held at Soldier's field instead of at Dwyer stadium and that the difference, probably $250,000, in receipts be used to relieve needy unemployed persons was under consideration today by officials of both schools and the western conference, which must give final approval to hold the game off the home field. Among those who expressed approval were Coach Knute Rockne of Notre Dame and Kenneth Wilson, director of athletics at Evanston.

McAfee from Cubs to Braves, Schulmerich, Los Angeles, to the Braves

Boston, Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—A three-cornered deal involving the Boston Braves, Chicago Cubs and Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League, was announced by officials of the local National League club today.

Bob Smith, right-handed pitcher, goes from the Braves to the Cubs, while Jimmy Welch, outfielder, goes from the Braves to Los Angeles.

William McAfee, right-handed pitcher, goes from the Cubs to the Braves, while Wesley Schulmerich, outfielder who bats right-handed, goes from Los Angeles to the Braves.

Cash also was involved but officials of the Braves said the amount they gave Los Angeles along with Welch for Schulmerich was equalized by the sum which the Cubs paid the Braves along with McAfee for Bob Smith.

Reports from the coast concerning that part of the deal involving the Braves and Los Angeles said that Boston gave $40,000 as part payment for Schulmerich.

Schulmerich batted for 387 during the past season, hitting 23 homers. Braves' officials compared him with Wally Berger, star of the Braves' attack this year.

McAfee, a graduate of University of Michigan, was farmed to Reading of the International League, where he won 6 games and lost one this year.

Those Happy Victorians
One entry in the diary of Mary Gladstone (afterward Mrs. Drew), daughter of W. E. Gladstone, "Grand Old Man" of Victorian politics, reads: "Quiet evening at home. I was in my room at 9:30 and heard him and mamma coming up the stairs singing, 'A ragamuffin husband and a ranting-polling wife' at the top of their voices."

"Him" was her father, the prime minister of England, then seventy-four years of age. "Home" was No. 10 Downing street, official residence of the P. M.—Kansas City Star.

"In the Doldrums"

To say, "I am in the doldrums" signifies that one is "in the dumps," or is depressed. It was originally a term of the seas. The word, "doldrums" refers to the shifting zone of equatorial calms of variable airs between the trade winds. The weather is hot, moist and extremely dispiriting with heavy and frequent rainfall usually accompanied by thunderstorms. In the old days, sailing vessels sometimes laid by helplessly becalmed for weeks with the crews "in the doldrums."—Kansas City Times.

ANGLER LOSES HIS PHILOSOPHY

LANDS A MAN WHOM BANDITS ROBBED AND TOSSED INTO THE LAKE

Chicago, Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—Ephraim S. Noble, an angler of some note on the south side, tossed a line into Lake Michigan yesterday afternoon off the foot of Roosevelt Road.

Then he lighted his pipe and lost himself in contemplation of his cork. His thoughts rambled afar—so far that two men held up Michael Weiser, 53, who not only buys old clothes but also wears 'em, close by and Noble didn't know it.

"Give us your dough," one of the bandits demanded.

"I haven't any," Weiser replied, and by way of proof indicated his threadbare raiment.

The skeptical bandits searched him and found $64 tucked away far inside the tattered coat.

As a penalty for lying to them, the robbers tossed Weiser into the lake.

Noble still fished and contemplated. Suddenly his bobber dived. Yards of line spun through the reel. Noble leaped to his pole. Visions of whales, sea lions and muskies flashed through his head as he desperately reeled in. The pole bent almost double. Noble was hard put to land his catch.

It couldn't be a whale or even a sea lion, Noble reasoned as he reeled in, for they don't wear derbies. It wasn't. It was Weiser.

HANK BRUDER
NORTHWESTERN
CAPTAIN--THE BIG
TEN'S BEST BACK!

DICK GENTLE--
PENN CAPTAIN
AND AN EASTERN
TRIPLE THREAT!

AMONG football's wealth of truly brilliant backs this year few, if any, surpass in fan interest the dramatic "Hard Luck" Hank Bruder of Northwestern and Dick Gentle, Penn captain. Though Bruder was crippled early in both the 1928 and 1929 seasons, his class was so apparent while in play that Coach Dick Hanley affirms emphatically: "Hank is the best back I've ever seen," and the ob-serving Richard has seen 'em all, specially in the Big Ten Conference for many years.

In a whimsical gesture to break the injury jinx, Bruder asked that he be assigned "13" as his identification numeral this year. And Hank got that number. He's by no means fragile, this hardboiled husky who brims with courage, but he has been hurt badly twice and, as these lines are written, fear is felt that he may be on the hospital list again by the time they're returned into type. The Sport Bug hopes nothing like that will happen for Hank's sake and because Northwestern needs a superstar to make a good showing in carrying through the hardest schedule in its history. The Wild Cats started with Tulane and will conclude with Notre Dame.

Hanley and the team physicians insisted Bruder was in perfect shape at the dawn of the season and, if "No. 13" beats the jinx this year, the gamey Hank should make those Northwestern Wild-cats wilder in a winning way.

Penn's coach, Lud Wray, had at least seventeen promising backs when their comrades up front are outplayed by the opposition.

BIG GAMES SPRINKLE SATURDAY'S FOOTBALL PROGRAM

NOTRE DAME VS. CARNEGIE TECH A BIG RUMPU

ARMY AND HARVARD, ALABAMA AND TENNESSEE, DARTMOUTH AND COLUMBIA

WISCONSIN VS. PENNSYLVANIA WILL ALL PROVIDE MODICUM OF EXCITEMENT

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Oct. 14.—Saturday's national football program is generously sprinkled with big games involving big names, but it shouldn't take little Johnny weaver back on the last row more than a second to name the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech rumpus at South Bend as the week's best.

Granting that Army and Harvard, Alabama and Tennessee, Dartmouth and Columbia and Wisconsin and Pennsylvania to mention a few, will create plenty of excitement, Notre Dame and Carnegie Tech should surpass them all in thrills.

A national championship may ride on that game Saturday and nobody knows it better than Knute Rockne and Judge Steffen, the rival coaches. Carnegie Tech, by way of warning to the Irish, defeated Georgia Tech last week, 21 to 0. The Georgia Tech Plaid whipped was not the Georgia Tech of several seasons back, but a pretty fair team, nevertheless.

Notre Dame "warmed-up" for Carnegie by defeating Southern Methodist University and Navy. Notre Dame, in whipping the Methodists, proved that Carnegie won't win by a passing attack.

Tennessee and Alabama should provide a most lively afternoon's entertainment down in Tuscaloosa. Tennessee, unbeaten in three years, must get licked sooner or later and Alabama, playing in its own backyard, looks like the team to do it. The Vols are badly crippled while Alabama is in the best of shape.

The affair at Cambridge will bring together two untried elevens. Army looked good against Furman and Swarthmore, but that means nothing; Harvard seemed strong against Coast Guard and Springfield, and that means less. Saturday will mark the first time either eleven has met real opposition and the outcome is a toss-up.

Pennsylvania, boasting a 40 to 0 victory over Virginia, travels to Madison to meet a Wisconsin eleven that holds a 34-0 decision over Chicago. Wisconsin is a favorite, but Gentle and Co. well might win.

Michigan State vs. Colgate, another east-midwest contest, should provide plenty of football. Colgate, with the exception of Louisiana, has scored more points in three games than any other team in the country, while Michigan State displayed real power in holding Michigan to a scoreless tie.

Viking History

In a little island in the middle of the Irish sea there is held every year on July 5 (representing midsummer day, old style), the promulgation of the Manx laws. The scene of the ceremony is Tynwald hill, in the Isle of Man.

It is a living relic of the important part played in the history of England by the Vikings, who from the close of the eighth century made plundering excursions to the British Isles, and then settled first in the Orkneys and Shetlands, later in the Hebrides, and thence gradually in the western isles of Scotland; in Ireland, where they were met by their brethren coming round by the south, and in Man, whence they spread eastward till they joined forces with their kinsfolk in York.

Warrior and Athlete

Babar the magnificent warrior oriental monarch of the Fifteenth century, was apparently tireless, and as proud of his skill as an athlete as of his ability as a general, says an article in the Boston Globe. Once, for the fun of it, he swam the Ganges, performing this stunt, as he explains in his memoirs, "in 33 strokes." At another time he ran around the battlements of a fortress with a man under each arm, leaping the embrasures. But these feats, added to his endless campaigns, weakened him, and he died suddenly at the age of forty-eight, leaving his new empire to a son whose ability was less conspicuous.

Honolulu Smokeless

Honolulu is a smokeless city and for that reason it is rated clean or free from the smudge which has marred the structural appearance of New York and particularly Pittsburgh. Except for the chimneys of the gas and electric plants there are no chimneys in Honolulu. In the first place heating systems are not needed and the greater number of housewives or servants use gas for cooking. Some more cook outdoors and others on a charcoal stove which does not give out any smoke. This interesting Hawaiian city, it was pointed out, is not a profitable field for painters.

THREE-CORNERED DEAL IN NATIONAL LEAGUE CIRCLES

PROPOSE TO HOLD NOTRE DAME-N. W. GAME IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—A proposal that the Notre Dame-Northwestern football game Nov. 22 be held at Soldier's field instead of at Dyche stadium and that the difference, probably $250,000, in receipts be used to relieve needy unemployed persons was under consideration today by officials of both schools and the western conference, which must give final approval to hold the game off the home field. Among those who expressed approval were Coach Knute Rockne of Notre Dame and Kenneth Wilson, director of athletics at Evanston.

The E. M. B. A. took two from the Eye Clothing Co. in a close battle. Hank Olsen hit the maples for a 617 total for the Eyes and had one 233 game. On the E. M. B. A. team Rardin rolled a 609 total with a 255 single game.

BOSTON BRAVES, CHICAGO CUBS, LOS ANGELES

McAfee from Cubs to Braves, Schulmerich, Los Angeles, to the Braves

Boston, Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—A three-cornered deal involving the Boston Braves, Chicago Cubs and Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League, was announced by officials of the local National League club today.

Bob Smith, right-handed pitcher, goes from the Cubs to the Braves, while Jimmy Welch, outfielder, goes from the Braves to Los Angeles.

William McAfee, right-handed pitcher, goes from the Cubs to the Braves, while Wesley Schulmerich, outfielder who bats right-handed, goes from Los Angeles to the Braves.

Cash also was involved but officials of the Braves said the amount they gave Los Angeles along with Welch for Schulmerich was equalized by the sum which the Cubs paid the Braves along with McAfee for Bob Smith.

Reports from the coast concerning that part of the deal involving the Braves and Los Angeles said that Boston gave $40,000 as part payment for Schulmerich.

Schulmerich batted for 387 during the past season, hitting 23 homers. Braves' officials compared him with Wally Berger, star of the Braves' attack this year.

McAfee, a graduate of University of Michigan, was farmed to Reading of the International League, where he won 6 games and lost one this year.

Those Happy Victorians
One entry in the diary of Mary Gladstone (afterward Mrs. Drew), daughter of W. E. Gladstone, "Grand Old Man" of Victorian politics, reads: "Quiet evening at home. I was in my room at 9:30 and heard him and mamma coming up the stairs singing, 'A ragamuffin husband and a ranting wife' at the top of their voices."
"Him" was her father, the prime minister of England, then seventy-four years of age. "Home" was No. 10 Downing street, official residence of the P. M.—Kansas City Star.

"In the Doldrums"
To say, "I am in the doldrums" signifies that one is "in the dumps," or is depressed. It was originally a term of the seas. The word, "doldrums" refers to the shifting zone of equatorial calms of variable airs between the trade winds. The weather is hot, moist and extremely dispiriting with heavy and frequent rainfall usually accompanied by thunderstorms. In the old days, sailing vessels sometimes laid by helplessly becalmed for weeks with the crews "in the doldrums."—Kansas City Times.

ANGLER LOSES HIS PHILOSOPHY

LANDS A MAN WHOM BANDITS ROBBED AND TOSSED INTO THE LAKE

Chicago, Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—Ephraim S. Noble, an angler of some note on the south side, tossed a line into Lake Michigan yesterday afternoon off the foot of Roosevelt Road.

Then he lighted his pipe and lost himself in contemplation of his cork. His thoughts rambled afar—so far that two men held up Michael Weiser, 53, who not only buys old clothes but also wears 'em, close by and Noble didn't know it.

"Give us your dough," one of the bandits demanded.
"I haven't any," Weiser replied, and by way of proof indicated his threadbare raiment.

The skeptical bandits searched him and found $64 tucked away far inside the tattered coat.

As a penalty for lying to them, the robbers tossed Weiser into the lake.

Noble still fished and contemplated. Suddenly his bobber dived. Yards of line span through the reel. Noble leaped to his pole. Visions of whales, sea lions and muskies flashed through his head as he desperately reeled in. The pole bent almost double. Noble was hard put to land his catch.

It couldn't be a whale or even a sea lion, Noble reasoned as he reeled in, for they don't wear derbies.

It wasn't. It was Weiser.

Backfield Big Shots

HANK BRUDER
NORTHWESTERN
CAPTAIN--THE BIG
TEN'S BEST BACK!

DICK GENTLE--
PENN CAPTAIN
AND AN EASTERN
TRIPLE THREAT!

AMONG football's wealth of truly brilliant backs this year few, if any, surpass in fan interest the dramatic "Hard Luck" Hank Bruder of Northwestern and Dick Gentle, Penn captain. Though Bruder was crippled early in both the 1928 and 1929 seasons, his class was so apparent while in play that Coach Dick Hanley affirms emphatically: "Hank is the best back I've ever seen," and the observing Richard has seen 'em all, specially in the Big Ten Conference for many years.

In a whimsical gesture to break the injury jinx, Bruder asked that he be assigned "13" as his identification numeral this year. And Hank got that number. He's by no means fragile, this hardboiled husky who brims with courage, but he has been hurt badly twice and, as these lines are written, fear is felt that he may be on the hospital list again by the time they're returned into type. The Sport Bug hopes nothing like that will happen for Hank's sake and because Northwestern needs a superstar to make a good showing in carrying through the hardest schedule in its history. The Wild Cats started with Tulane and will conclude with Notre Dame.

Hanley and the team physicians insisted Bruder was in perfect shape at the dawn of the season and, if "No. 13" beats the jinx this year, the gamey Hank should make those Northwestern Wildcats wilder in a winning way. Penn's coach, Lud Wray, had at least seventeen promising backs reporting for practice early last month and, it's estimated, the Red and Black now has developed ten first-class ball carriers, bright among whom are Dare Devil Dick Gentle, Will-o'-the-Wisp Wally Masters, Warren Gette, and Charley Greene.

Capt. Gentle is equally suited either at quarter or half. He's the typical "triple-threat" on offense, has two brilliant seasons just behind him, and should be at apogee this year.

If Penn can develop a satisfactory line, Gentle, Masters & Co. will at least vie with Harvard and Yale for having the most elusive and effective backfield in the East. But it all depends on the line. The Bruders and Gentles of the grid are just hardworking backs when their comrades up front are outplayed by the opposition.

5 PER CENT REDUCTION IN INITIAL ADVANCE, CANADIAN WHEAT

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 14.—(UP)—A five per cent reduction in the initial advance on 1930 wheat was announced today by the Canadian wheat pools.

Pool officials made no statement in connection with the announcement, remarking that no comment was necessary since a demoralized world market had brought the market price too close to the pool's initial payment.

SLAPS BOY'S FACE, FINED FOR ASSAULT

Earl Evans Found Guilty of Charge, Slapped Harley Hedy Because He Kicked Relative

Earl Evans, 19, who slapped Harley Hedy, 12, because the boy kicked his cousin, Claude Lease, 9, while playing at cowboy on a backlot at Lum Park hill was found guilty of assault in the third degree in municipal court this morning and fined $10 and costs.

A former suspension on an assault case was ordered revoked and Evans ordered to pay $25 of a fine imposed last April.

Evans testified that Harley had an iron pipe in his hands and that he slapped his face after taking the iron away from him.

Judge Warner scored the defendant for "picking" on a smaller boy.

The defendant was represented by Attorney William J. Swanson. Evidence in the complaint was presented by City Attorney D. H. Fullerton.

What does the P. T. A. need money for? The Lincoln P. T. A. which is putting on their annual carnival this week, answers this question in an interesting manner:

While it is very true that the P. T. A.'s are not money making organizations, it is necessary to have some finances to carry on the work. The foundation and purpose of our P. T. A. organizations is "Child Welfare" and the cooperation of parents and teachers to do their best along these lines, requires some money. The Lincoln P. T. A. makes their money at one annual carnival when all members and friends of the organization do their bit to make it a success. The money is spent in a large number of ways, as the need comes up.

The largest item is usually the play ground equipment. This equipment totals over $50 yearly, and sometimes a great deal more as was the case when they placed the large swings and tennis court at the Lincoln grounds. Then there is their standing pledge to the local child welfare board of $36 a year. The P. T. A. also sponsors milk for the children at school. While this is paid for by the parents in most instances, it always costs the organization several dollars each month to handle it.

One good picture is also purchased each year as an attendance banner.

Money is also needed for the relief work under the management of the city nurse and the principal of the building. Then finances are required for the dozen and one miscellaneous needs which always come up. This year they must finish payments on a big all electric radio and phonograph combine which was partly won in the pasteurized milk contest last spring. This radio has already been installed and is in use each school day. Friday morning of last week the entire school was privileged to listen in to the Walter Damrosch grade school music lesson out of New York city, which is just one of the many wonderful features that this piece of equipment will bring the children.

The Lincoln P. T. A. gives their annual carnival Saturday, October 18 at the school building. All are invited to come.

LINCOLN P. T. A.'S ANNUAL CARNIVAL

Money Derived is Largely Spent in Interest of Child Welfare

(Contributed)

What does the P. T. A. need money for? The Lincoln P. T. A. which is putting on their annual carnival this week, answers this question in an interesting manner:

While it is very true that the P. T. A.'s are not money making organizations, it is necessary to have some finances to carry on the work. The foundation and purpose of our P. T. A. organizations is "Child Welfare" and the cooperation of parents and teachers to do their best along these lines, requires some money. The Lincoln P. T. A. makes their money at one annual carnival when all members and friends of the organization do their bit to make it a success. The money is spent in a large number of ways, as the need comes up.

The largest item is usually the play ground equipment. This equipment totals over $50 yearly, and sometimes a great deal more as was the case when they placed the large swings and tennis court at the Lincoln grounds. Then there is their standing pledge to the local child welfare board of $36 a year. The P. T. A. also sponsors milk for the children at school. While this is paid for by the parents in most instances, it always costs the organization several dollars each month to handle it.

One good picture is also purchased each year as an attendance banner.

Money is also needed for the relief work under the management of the city nurse and the principal of the building. Then finances are required for the dozen and one miscellaneous needs which always come up. This year they must finish payments on a big all electric radio and phonograph combine which was partly won in the pasteurized milk contest last spring. This radio has already been installed and is in use each school day. Friday morning of last week the entire school was privileged to listen in to the Walter Damrosch grade school music lesson out of New York city, which is just one of the many wonderful features that this piece of equipment will bring the children.

The Lincoln P. T. A. gives their annual carnival Saturday, October 18 at the school building. All are invited to come.

"The SEA BRIDE"

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

THE ROMANCE OF AN EVENTFUL WHALING CRUISE

CHAPTER XLIV.

THE days held clear and fine, the nights were warm, and the crescent moon above them fattened, night by night, till it was no longer a crescent but half a circle of silver radiance that touched the beach and the trees and the sea with magic fingers.

That night, with the full tides still a week away, Roy Kilcup came from the fo'c's'le into the waist and looked aft. There was no officer in sight at the moment save old Tichel, and Roy hailed him softly. Tichel went forward to where the boy stood; they whispered together. Then Tichel went with Roy toward the fo'c's'le.

Faith was in her cabin; Dan'l was in the main cabin; and Willis and Brander were playing cribbage near him when the outcry forward roused them. A man yelled. They were on deck in tumbling haste; and Faith was at their heels.

Came Tichel, dragging Mauger by the collar. His right hand gripped Mauger; his left held a bottle. He shook the one-eyed man till Mauger's teeth rattled, and he brandished the bottle.

"Caught the pig!" he cried furiously. "Here he is! With this hid under his blanket!"

"I never put it there," Mauger protested.

Tichel cuffed him into silence.

"What's that, Mr. Tichel?" Dan'l asked sharply.

"Whisky, Mr. Tobey. He took it forward and hid it in his bunk."

"Tell the whole of it, Mr. Tichel," Faith said. "What happened?"

She looked from Tichel to Brander. Brander was standing stiffly; she thought his face was white. Mauger hung in Tichel's grip.

Old Tichel had given a promise to Roy; Roy had begged him not to tell that the boy had spied.

"I saw him go forward with something under his coat," Tichel said. "Never thought for a minute; then it came to me what it might be. I took after him. Rest of the men were on deck, sleeping. It's hot below, you'll mind. I dropped down quietly. Mauger, here, was in his bunk. I routed him out, and rummaged, and there you are, ma'am."

He shook the bottle triumphantly.

"Where did you get it, Mauger?" Faith asked the one-eyed man.

"Never knewed it was there," Mauger swore. "Honest t' the Lord, ma'am!"

Tichel slapped his face stunningly.

"No more of that, Mr. Tichel!" Faith said. "Dan'l, what do you think?"

Dan'l lifted his hand, with a glance at Brander.

"Why—nothing! Somebody's been doing it; him as well as another."

"Willis," Faith asked, "what's your notion?"

"I guess Mauger done it."

"Brander?"

Brander lifted his head and met her eyes.

"Other men have found whiskey in their bunks without knowing how it got there," he said. "I believe Mauger."

"I'm saying I saw him take it," old Tichel snarled. He dropped Mauger and took a fierce step toward Brander. "Ye think I'd lie?"

"I think you're mistaken," Brander said evenly.

Tichel leaped at him; Brander gripped the other's arms at the elbows and held him.

"Enough of that!" Faith said sharply. "We'll end this thing tonight. Mr. Tobey, get lanterns and search the ship till you find the rest of this stuff." She took the whiskey-bottle, opened it, and poured its contents over the rail. "Search it out," she said. "Be about it!"

Save Dan'l Tobey, the officers stood stockstill, as if not understanding. Dan'l acted as quickly as if he had expected the order. He sent Silva, the harpooner, to get the foremost hands together forward and keep them there under his eye. He sent Tichel and Yella Boy into the main hold, Willis and Long Jim into the after 'tween-decks. Brander and Eph Hitch were to search the cabin and the captain's storeroom; and Faith went down with them to give them the keys. Loum, Kellick and Tinch the cook, were put to rummaging about the after deck and amidships.

There was no need of lights upon the deck itself; the moon bathed the Sally in its rays, and one might have read by them without undue effort. Below, the whale-oil lanterns went to and fro.

Brander and Hitch made short work of their task, and they came on deck with Faith. Dan'l sent Brander to rummage through the storeroom, where the harpooners slept, and at Faith's suggestion, Hitch and Loum went aloft to the mainheads to make sure there was no secret cache there.

They were an hour or more at their search of the Sally, and at the end of that time they were no wiser than they were before. Faith had gone below before the end; she came on deck as Tichel and Yella Boy reported nothing found below.

"Have you found anything?" she asked Dan'l.

"No."

"Where have you looked?"

"Everywhere aboard here, Faith. The stuff's well hidden, sure!"

"If it's not on the Sally, it's near her," Faith said quietly. "Search the boats, Mr. Tobey."

Dan'l nodded.

"But it'd not be in them," he said. "That's sure enough."

"It's nowhere else, you say. Try."

Willis Cox and Brander turned toward where their boats hung by the rail.

"Willis—Mr. Brander," Faith said quietly, "let Mr. Tobey do the searching."

Willis stopped readily enough; Brander—forewarned, perhaps, by some instinctive fear—hesitated.

"Mr. Brander," Faith said again. He stood still where he was. Dan'l was looking through his own boat at the moment. He passed to old Tichel's; to that of Willis Cox. Brander's boat came last. Dan'l Tobey flashed his lantern in it as he had in the others, studied it from bow to stern, opened the stern locker beneath the cuddy boards.

There was a jug there—a jug that in the other boats had contained water. He pulled the stopper and smelled.

"By Jupiter, Faith, it's here!" he cried.

The closer the bond between man and man, or between man and woman, the easier it is to arraign them, one with the other. It is hard for an outsider to provoke a quarrel between strangers, or between casual acquaintances; but it is not hard for a crafty man to make dissension between friends; and almost any one may, if he chooses, bring about discord between lovers. This is a strange and contradictory thing.

When Dan'l found the whisky in Brander's boat and came toward Faith with the open jug in his hands, Faith stood with a white face, looking steadily at Brander, and not at Dan'l at all. Brander had made one move when Dan'l lifted the jug; he had stepped quickly toward the boat, but Faith spoke quietly to him. He stopped and looked at her.

Dan'l was watching the two of them. Mauger saw a chance, and as the mate passed where the one-eyed man crouched, Mauger leaped at him to snatch the whisky away. Tichel caught Mauger from behind, and held him.

The little man had had the best intentions in the world; but this movement on his part completed the evidence of Brander's guilt; for Mauger was Brander's man, loyal as a dog, and Faith knew it. She thought quickly, remembering the past days; remembering Mauger's furive air and Brander's aloofness, and his support of Mauger against Tichel. She was sure, before Dan'l reached her with the jug, that Mauger and Brander were guilty as Judas—Brander especially. She scarce considered Mauger at all.

Dan'l handed her the jug, and she smelled at it. Whisky, beyond a doubt. She took it to the rail and poured it overboard as she had poured the contents of the bottle; then came slowly back and handed the empty jug to Brander.

"This is yours," she said. "You had best rinse it and fill it with water and put it in your boat again."

The moon was bright upon them as they stood on the deck. He could see her face, he could see her eyes; and he saw that she thought him guilty. His soul sickened with the bitterness of it; and his lips twisted in a smile.

"Very well," he said.

She looked at him a little wistfully.

"You're not denying it's yours?" He shook his head.

"No."

If she believed, let her believe. He was furious with her.

"Why did you do it?" she asked.

He said nothing; and she looked up at him a moment more, and then turned to Mauger.

"Why did you do it?" she asked the little man.

Mauger squinted sidewise at Brander. Mauger was Brander's man; and all his loyalty was to Brander. Brander chose not to speak, not to deny the charge she laid against him. All right; if Brander could keep silent, so could he. If Brander would not deny, neither would he. He grinned at Faith, and the closed lids that covered his empty eye-socket seemed to wink; but he said nothing at all.

Indians' Ancestors

The origin of the North American Indians is a question on which authorities are unable to agree. Some hold that the American Indian is indigenous, others that he was distinctly Asiatic in origin, while still others contend that Australia and the South Sea Islands were the base from which the aboriginal Indians pushed off for America.

The SEA BRIDE

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

THE ROMANCE OF AN EVENTFUL WHALING CRUISE

CHAPTER XLIV.

THE days held clear and fine, the nights were warm, and the crescent moon above them fattened, night by night, till it was no longer a crescent but half a circle of silver radiance that touched the beach and the trees and the sea with magic fingers.

That night, with the full tides still a week away, Roy Kilcup came from the fo'c's'le into the waist and looked aft. There was no officer in sight at the moment save old Tichel, and Roy hailed him softly. Tichel went forward to where the boy stood; they whispered together. Then Tichel went with Roy toward the fo'c's'le. Faith was in her cabin; Dan'l was in the main cabin; and Willis and Brander were playing cribbage near him when the outcry forward roused them. A man yelled. They were on deck in tumbling haste; and Faith was at their heels.

Came Tichel, dragging Mauger by the collar. His right hand gripped Mauger; his left held a bottle. He shook the one-eyed man till Mauger's teeth rattled, and he brandished the bottle.

"Caught the pig!" he cried furiously. "Here he is! With this hid under his blanket!"

"I never put it there," Mauger protested.

Tichel cuffed him into silence.

"What's that, Mr. Tichel?"

Dan'l asked sharply.

"Whisky, Mr. Tobey. He took it forward and hid it in his bunk."

"Tell the whole of it, Mr. Tichel," Faith said. "What happened?"

She looked from Tichel to Brander. Brander was standing stiffly; she thought his face was white. Mauger hung in Tichel's grip.

Old Tichel had given a promise to Roy; Roy had begged him not to tell that the boy had spied.

"I saw him go forward with something under his coat," Tichel said. "Never thought for a minute; then it came to me what it might be. I took after him. Rest of the men were on deck, sleeping. It's hot below, you'll mind. I dropped down quietly. Mauger, here, was in his bunk. I routed him out, and rummaged, and there you are, ma'am."

He shook the bottle triumphantly.

"Where did you get it, Mauger?" Faith asked the one-eyed man.

"Never knewed it was there," Mauger swore. "Honest 't' the Lord, ma'am."

Tichel slapped his face stunnily.

"No more of that, Mr. Tichel!" Faith said. "Dan'l, what do you think?"

Dan'l lifted his hand, with a glance at Brander.

"Why—nothing! Somebody's been doing it; him as well as another."

"Willis," Faith asked, "what's your notion?"

"I guess Mauger done it."

"Brander?"

Brander lifted his head and met her eyes.

"Other men have found whiskey in their bunks without knowing how it got there," he said. "I believe Mauger."

"I'm saying I saw him take it," old Tichel snarled. He dropped Mauger and took a fierce step toward Brander. "Ye think I'd lie?"

"I think you're mistaken," Brander said evenly.

Tichel leaped at him; Brander gripped the other's arms at the elbows and held him.

"Enough of that!" Faith said sharply. "We'll end this thing tonight. Mr. Tobey, get lanterns and search the ship till you find the rest of this stuff." She took the whiskey-bottle, opened it, and poured its contents over the rail. "Search it out," she said. "Be about it!"

Save Dan'l Tobey, the officers stood stockstill, as if not understanding. Dan'l acted as quickly as if he had expected the order.

He sent Silva, the harpooner, to get the foremast hands together forward and keep them there under his eye. He sent Tichel and Yella Boy into the main hold, Willis and Long Jim into the after 'tween-decks. Brander and Eph Hitch were to search the cabin and the captain's storeroom; and Faith went down with them to give them the keys. Loum, Kellick and Tinch, the cook, were put to rummaging about the after deck and amidships.

There was no need of lights upon the deck itself; the moon bathed the Sally in its rays, and one might have read by them without undue effort. Below, the whale-oil lanterns went to and fro.

Brander and Hitch made short work of their task, and they came on deck with Faith. Dan'l sent Brander to rummage through the steerage, where the harpooners slept, and at Faith's suggestion, Hitch and Loum went aloft to the mastheads to make sure there was no secret cache there.

They were an hour or more at their search of the Sally, and at the end of that time they were no wiser than they were before. Faith had gone below before the end; she came on deck as Tichel and Yella Boy reported nothing found below.

"Have you found anything?" she asked Dan'l.

"No."

"Where have you looked?"

"Everywhere aboard here, Faith. The stuff's well hidden, sure."

"If it's not on the Sally, it's near her," Faith said quietly. "Search the boats, Mr. Tobey."

Dan'l nodded.

"But it'd not be in them," he said. "That's sure enough."

"It's nowhere else, you say. Try."

Willis Cox and Brander turned toward where their boats hung by the rail.

"Willis—Mr. Brander," Faith said quietly, "let Mr. Tobey do the searching."

Willis stopped readily enough; Brander—forewarned, perhaps, by some instinctive fear—hesitated.

"Mr. Brander," Faith said again. He stood still where he was. Dan'l was looking through his own boat at the moment. He passed to old Tichel's; to that of Willis Cox. Brander's boat came last. Dan'l Tobey flashed his lantern in it as he had in the others, studied it from bow to stern, opened the stern locker beneath the cuddy boards.

There was a jug there—a jug that in the other boats had contained water. He pulled the stopper and smelled.

"By Jupiter, Faith, it's here!" he cried.

The closer the bond between man and man, or between man and woman, the easier it is to enbroil them, one with the other. It is hard for an outsider to provoke a quarrel between strangers, or between casual acquaintances; but it is not hard for a crafty man to make dissension between friends; and almost any one may, if he chooses, bring about discord between lovers. This is a strange and contradictory thing.

When Dan'l found the whisky in Brander's boat and came toward Faith with the open jug in his hands, Faith stood with a white face, looking steadily at Brander, and not at Dan'l at all. Brander had made one move when Dan'l lifted the jug; he had stepped quickly toward the boat, but Faith spoke quietly to him. He stopped and looked at her.

Dan'l was watching the two of them. Mauger saw a chance, and as the mate passed where the one-eyed man crouched, Mauger leaped forward to snatch the whisky away. Tichel caught Mauger from behind, and held him.

The little man had had the best intentions in the world; but this movement on his part completed the evidence of Brander's guilt; for Mauger was Brander's man, loyal as a dog, and Faith knew it. She thought quickly, remembering the past days; remembering Mauger's furtive air and Brander's aloofness, and his support of Mauger against Tichel. She was sure, before Dan'l reached her with the jug, that Mauger and Brander were guilty as Judas—Brander especially. She scarce considered Mauger at all.

Dan'l handed her the jug, and she smelled at it. Whisky, beyond a doubt. She took it to the rail and poured it overside as she had poured the contents of the bottle; then came slowly back and handed the empty jug to Brander.

"This is yours," she said. "You had best rinse it and fill it with water, and put it in your boat again."

The moon was bright upon them as they stood on the deck. He could see her face, he could see her eyes; and he saw that she thought him guilty. His soul sickened with the bitterness of it; and his lips twisted in a smile.

"Very well," he said.

She looked at him a little wistfully.

"You're not denying it's yours?" He shook his head.

"No."

If she believed, let her believe. He was furious with her.

"Why did you do it?" she asked.

He said nothing; and she looked up at him a moment more, and then turned to Mauger.

"Why did you do it?" she asked the little man.

Mauger squinted sidewise at Brander. Mauger was Brander's man; and all his loyalty was to Brander. Brander chose not to speak, not to deny the charge she laid against him. All right; if Brander could keep silent, so could he. If Brander would not deny, neither would he. He grinned at Faith, and the closed lids that covered his empty eye-socket seemed to wink; but he said nothing at all.
